

The Sacramental Imagination

Coming to a Seattle Parish near you.
Contact Nina Butorac to schedule
this eight-week series at your parish!

Join Nina Butorac for an in-depth look at the sacramental themes present in the works of many Catholic authors, and writers with Catholic concerns. This eight-week course will touch on the works of Albert Camus, Annie Dillard, Flannery O'Connor, Thomas Merton, Gerard Manley Hopkins, Graham Greene, Richard Rodriguez, and others.

The Just Judges

“The sacramental insight so fundamental to a Catholic view of reality engages us in ‘double-business.’ We are bound to see the finite world as the bearer of the infinite and we must consider that which is singular as of nearly infinite significance... We find God in the ironic juxtaposition of our most fervent hopes and our experience of the sorrow of the world.”

- Steven Schloesser, S.J.

This course covers college-level material, and pre-registration is required. Students will need to purchase four books, and any fees will be set by the contracting parish.

Nina Butorac is a graduate of Seattle University, majoring in Literature and Philosophy, and is a freelance writer, artist and lecturer.

For more information, please contact
Nina Butorac at nbutorac@yahoo.com, or call 206-910-2901.

